THE RACE TO END DRUG SHORTAGES THROUGH COLLABORATION AND PATIENT-CENTRIC DESIGN LAURA BRAY, MBA

Laura Bray is Chief Change Maker and founder of Angels for Change. Founded in October 2019, Angels for Change is a global, volunteer-supported, non-profit organization on a mission to end drug shortages through advocacy, awareness, and a resilient supply chain. Angels for Change is the only patient advocacy, non-profit organization in the country with a mission to end drug shortages.

Angels for Change was founded after Laura's daughter, Abby, faced three life-saving drug shortages during her pediatric cancer diagnosis. Laura's knowledge of supply chain, understanding of business, and first-hand experience navigating life-saving drug shortages for her own child drives the Angles for Change mission. She is building a resilient supply chain, so no patient hears the words "We don't have the drugs needed to save you," and no doctor must deliver those words.

Since founding, Laura has advocated for hundreds of patients and dozens of facilities during 50+ unique drug shortage crises, connecting them to unused supply; used prediction and multi-stakeholder engagement to increase supply resulting in 700,000 patient shortage treatments accessed during 2 supply disruptions in 2022; built a network of champions and subject matter experts throughout the supply chain; launched SummitONE, the only supply chain conference in the US dedicated to drug shortages and the patients they impact; helped launch the End Drug Shortage Alliance (EDSA); invited to participate as a stakeholder in the NASEM drug shortages report, attended the White House drug shortages roundtable, and testified before congress.
